It was directed by Tom Grieves and produced by Norman Lear. The screenplay was written by Michael McDonald. It stars Steve Carell, Rob Corddry, Tim Meadows, Kristen Schaal, and Aasif Mandvi. The film had its world premiere on November 13, 2011, at the 2011 Sundance Film Festival. On May 17, 2012, it was reported that the film would screen in New York City and Los Angeles at the Tribeca Film Festival. It went on to be screened in Chicago, Los Angeles, Sydney, and New Zealand. The film was released on December 8, 2012, in a limited release, through GKIDS, the film's distributor. Plot In 2006, three criminal black market marketers from Milwaukee, Poland, and South Africa meet for a business meeting and introduce each other to their respective officials. With the Russian Mafia on the scene, the plan is to conduct a peace conference in Los Angeles to reach consensus on existing laws, ideally offering amnesty to the world's nations. Tim Robbins is the host of the conference, and he tasks America's heroes to help the delegates with respect to the entirety of the world. The World Police are a team of superheroes and celebrities. They must work together to locate Osama bin Laden and arrest Ted Kaczynski, who is in the process of beginning a new series of bombings that will create more chaos than the previous two decades. The group searches for the terrorists across the globe. They encounter problems when they take some time to check in with their families, as well as a group of anti-hero activists, the Justice League of America, who are upset with the idea of containing evil. Also, they

That aircraft has a pretty big wingspan, and it just crashed, so what's the probability of a larger aircraft having similar specs crashing by itself at sea, particularly in a (4) region where air traffic is uncommon? I'm referring to this crash: A: This is based on one plane crash of a Gulfstream III. There is no way to know the probability of having that particular plane crash, as you can't know what things might cause it to crash. However, we do know that larger planes have a higher crash rate, because as you noted, the plane in the linked crash had a wingspan of 222 feet. You can see the following chart for more details (taken from the FAA): The number of commercial aircraft crashes of the type G-V G-III have been recorded for more than 50 years. This represents information from the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB). The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) publishes an annual report called Aviation Safety Statistics that provides a systematic approach to compile safety data. Aviation Safety Reporting System (ASRS) data, which covers all aircraft crashes, are included in this report. Based on this information, approximately 3.5% of all aviation accidents involved G-III aircraft, with a higher than average fatality rate among them. Another source of data is reporting to the NTSB, which was called the U.S. National Aviation Reporting System (NARS) from 1989 to 2014. The FAA will make this available to NARS members as needed. The NTSB has tracked fatal accidents involving
