What's New In Adobe Photoshop 2022 ()?

Effect of heme oxygenase-1 expression on nuclear factor-kappaB and mRNA expression of pro-inflammatory cytokines in hepatocellular carcinoma. Hepatocarcinogenesis is a complex process involving multiple factors. Oxygen-derived free radicals are involved in many phases of carcinogenesis. Heme oxygenase 1 (HO-1) is an enzyme that metabolizes heme to carbon monoxide, ferrous iron, and biliverdin/bilirubin, and its expression is induced by oxidative stress. We examined the effect of HO-1 on nuclear factor-kappaB (NF-kappaB) activation and tumor necrosis factor-alpha (TNF-alpha) and interleukin-8 (IL-8) mRNA expression in hepatocellular carcinoma. We examined the expression of the HO-1 protein and p50 subunit of NF-kappaB by Western blot and the binding activity of NF-kappaB by electrophoretic mobility shift assay. The mRNA expression levels of TNF-alpha and IL-8 and the proliferation of tumor cells were measured by reverse transcription-polymerase chain reaction and 3-(4,5-dimethylthiazol-2-yl)-2,5-diphenyltetrazolium bromide assays. The expression of HO-1, p50, and NF-kappaB in the Hep3B and HepG2 cell lines was higher than in the normal liver cell line (HL-7702). The transfection of Hep3B and HepG2 cells with HO-1 resulted in a dose-dependent increase in HO-1, p50, and NF-kappaB expression, and a decrease in TNF-alpha and IL-8 expression. The proliferation of Hep3B and HepG2 cells transfected with HO-1 decreased. These findings indicate that increased expression of HO-1 inhibits the activation of NF-kappaB and the expression of TNF-alpha and IL-8 and suppresses the growth of hepatocellular carcinoma.
