Just another WordPress site Tag: Senate Notwithstanding the Senate filibuster, Republicans in the House have failed to pass their version of the American Health Care Act, and President Donald Trump has said he will try to get it passed by executive order if he can't do it legislatively. Republicans in the House are uniting behind a "Plan B" to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act, otherwise known as Obamacare. They tried and failed to pass their version of the American Health Care Act (AHCA) last week. And they're just as divided now. It will be up to President Trump to decide if he'll sign a bill that repeals "Obamacare" — or leave the Affordable Care Act in place as law. This week, the House voted to repeal the individual and employer mandates in Obamacare, ban the use of federal subsidies for any insurance that covers abortion, defund Planned Parenthood, and reallocate its Medicaid funding in a way that doesn't take into account the high cost of living in some states. Obamacare still stands, but the Republicans have their work cut out for them. It's become more than just about repealing the law – they need to replace it with a new one, and fast. Republicans say that they will not raise taxes. Who, or what, will replace Obamacare is unclear. President Obama said this week that "nobody's losing coverage or access to care," but that is not necessarily the case. For example, a government report, the Annual Population Survey, found that Obamacare has reduced the uninsured from 16 percent in 2011 to 8.9 percent in 2014. The Republican Party has recently been hit with a massive loss in a special election in Kansas' 4th Congressional District. The district includes many college and university campuses. The candidate, Ron Estes, won by less than three percentage points, a shocking result in Kansas. In early May, Estes went up against Doug Owens, an African-American Democrat. The district has been vacant for seven years, having been vacated by Mike Pompeo, who was appointed to the position of Director of the Central Intelligence Agency by President Trump. Republicans have to consider Estes's win as a warning sign for the 2018 midterm elections. It appears that voters in this district are not buying the Republican line on taxes, healthcare, and so on.
