Plastic Man Plastic Man is the US direct-to-video release of the 2009 Japanese animation Plastic Man. It was released on DVD on March 16, 2011. Plastic Man is the latest in a series of direct to video Plastic Man movies produced by Warner Bros. and DC Comics, starting with the original Plastic Man in 1979. The movie is also the first since the release of Plastic Man and the Incredibly Famous News! (2001) not to feature the property's original creator, Jack Cole. Cole had created Plastic Man during the 1950s, while he also made the comic books in which he featured the character. The events of the Plastic Man movie happens in the same universe as those of the 1990 film Batman Returns, which shares the same characters and many of the same locations. Shorts: A short segment from the Plastic Man anime series aired on Cartoon Network on Saturday, June 27, 2009. This was a preview for the 2009 Plastic Man anime that was released in America and other countries that same year. The preview featured Plastic Man chasing after the two main characters in the story.

International Releases The distributor of the movie, Warner Bros., which licenses the Plastic Man series from DC Comics, did an International release under the title Plastic Man. Plastic Man was released theatrically in the United States
