SMART Monitor Crack+ Free [Mac/Win]

SMART Monitor is a freeware utility capable to watch over the performance attributes and notifies you when any of them changes. The installation is pretty straightforward and in a matter of seconds you can have the software up and running. The interface is more functional than appealing, but this helps minimize the stress on your system. The first tab that is displayed in the main window contains some basic information about your drive, but also volume details and more advanced content. The most interesting area is the 'SMART info' where you check out a lot of attributes and their values. SMART Monitor is capable to show you the current as well as the worst rates recorded. This tab also includes a column for the threshold assigned to each attribute. You can effortlessly configure the time interval the application will use to poll the selected drive for information by dragging a slider in the 'Options' section. In the same place you can activate the logging for SMART alerts and also the warning balloon tips that will pop up when the SMART values drop. This software has a decent set of features and is not difficult in terms of usage, so it is well worth a try, especially if you take into consideration the fact that it should be able to simultaneously supervise up to 4 drives. Thanks for these comments; since I just need to monitor one hard drive that's plugged directly into the machine, they're all I need. I don't see how that tool doesn't do what it says it does. It does! Quote: Originally Posted by The_Real_Foo Which is not obvious at all if you don't read the doc and instructions. Of course it is. I'm using the same one on my PC, Win 7 and it works fine. Which is totally fine, but I have no idea what to do with the info that's displayed in the main window. It's not catered for normal users (or even experts) at all. Interesting. Please upload a screenshot with your PC on it? Quote: You mean like this link, the 'SMART Monitor' section... No, no, the main window. The small window shown when you go to the 'SMART' tab in my post. That's
