For the second time this season, the Minnesota Wild's Kirk Cousins has been named the NHL's starting goaltender for the second round of the 2014 Stanley Cup Playoffs. The Wild pulled off a remarkable upset in getting the first-round series opener against the Chicago Blackhawks started on Friday in Minnesota. But the hardest-working and most accomplished goaltender in the playoffs, Cory Schneider, made Minnesota pay for its performance in the opener by going four strong in Chicago's 5-2 win in Game 2 on Saturday night. "It's a lot of fun, but I'm not big on it," Cousins said. "Sometimes it feels like you're getting burned out and you're not having a good game. Just trying to keep it simple and continue to play the way I am now." Cousins' save percentage in this series is .934 and he has made 112 saves to Schneider's 58. That's the fourth time Cousins has had a greater save percentage than Schneider this year. "He's playing excellent hockey and they've got a
