This is the story of Eristan, the presumed heir to the throne, who has been secretly left for 15 years to live on his own. Unknown to anyone he has lost his memory, only the trusted advisors of the Emperor knew the truth. The Emperor had called for someone to be crowned to save the empire from falling apart. But Eristan is weak and defenseless because his family did not want the throne. He has to master his power and skills to become the rightful king of Elion. You must look for answers to quest and his memory, because to end this in a good way, you have to feel the oneness, strength and the consequences of you decision. This is a journey you will never forget. Features - Quest, Combat, Magic, Graphics, Skins and Customizing - Advanced Quest generation mechanics - A first person view of the main character - Randomly generated maps and dungeons - Customizable NPC interaction - Configurable settings in the game - Restart and save your game - A fast paced action combat system - Soundtrack by Naama Elia Change history Starting now Mod download links will be provided when projects are uploaded. Starting at 3.0.0 The finished game will be on the Games page. The download page will just contain links to the mod. You will find the latest version of the mod on the Releases page Change history At the start of the project, I planned the graphics to be especially rough compared to other projects with this kind of budget. But it turned out, that other graphics are more colorful and more detailed. So I did not feel like I have to redo the graphics. It would have been really difficult to change graphics quality without making the game harder and less accessible. Only thing that is missing is a landscape that can be found in a lot of video games, e.g. Skyrim, but not right in my project. I guess it will be the most known feature to players. For some time now, I have sold the game and am not sure if I will be able to finish it anymore. Feel free to finish it, it is open source so you can add whatever you want. It will be possible to add sounds. There is a place on the world of the universe (Spacer.) where the sound of rushing wind could be added. For the c9d1549cdd

What's new:

By The Foodie Updated Jan. 10, 2011 12:01 a.m. ET President Barack Obama may be seeking recipes for his signature dish, but any attempt to turn on the oven and concoct the perfect pepperoni pizza could wind up serving him a rocky ending. Lawmakers in seven states, from Pennsylvania to California, today said they would call on the Obama administration to address safety issues with the tubs of thickening liquid used in pizza sauces. They cite several failures of this kind for a 2008 fire at a Pizza Hut in New London, Conn., that killed four teens, a 2010 pizza-kit incident that injured a 5-year-old boy and earlier issues at a Papa John's pizza chain. "In each of these incidents, children were harmed because of a product that has been linked to serious health problems, including respiratory ailments, cancer and even brain damage, as well as property damage," said Rep. Glenn Thompson, a Pennsylvania Democrat who is one of the lawmakers pressing Obama to set up a task force to evaluate, revamp and redesign cooking-kit standards for pizza sauces. Congressional Republicans, meanwhile, were hopeful they would be able to get the issue onto the new president's agenda as Obama's Environmental Protection Agency gives rise to a series of regulatory initiatives. "You've got a new administration and you might be interested to know that we have some ideas for that," said House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, who noted that the president had said about the possibility of Congress taking up climate change policy: "Let me know what I need to do." Democrats remain skeptical that their proposal can push ahead, because they say business groups have turned against the idea. At an online forum for congressional Republicans' constituents, Cantor first raised the issue of pizza cooking-kit safety, citing it for emphasis when he said "I'll take that challenge." At the House Energy and Commerce Committee's hearing on the topic Wednesday morning, the pizza-sauce producers joined the restaurant operators in opposing specific measures to get better safety tests and ingredients. Those companies warn taking matters into their own hands could mean letting different standards in states like New Jersey and Maryland or less consumer protection in other states. The coalition said it was concerned the bill appeared more aimed at drawing attention to single issue without achieving regulatory reform. The trade group also expressed skepticism about a need for stricter standards for safety, given how slow regulatory changes have gone in recent years. That left the committee

Aortic insufficiency combined with torsion of the aorta. The aortic valve insufficiency combined with torsion of the aorta occurs rarely, the majority being those with Marfan's syndrome. Two patients with aortic valve regurgitation and acute torsion of the aorta are described to illustrate the clinical and hemodynamic manifestations. The rareness of the combined aortic valve insufficiency with aortic torsion together with the absence of myocardial fibrosis in our cases suggests that the principal mechanism of aortic insufficiency with aortic torsion can be compared with non-syndromic aortic regurgitation in which the aortic valve is anatomically competent.

A pharmacokinetic comparison of oral and intravenous administration of ethinyl estradiol in postmenopausal women. The oral bioavailability of ethinyl estradiol was studied in 16 women and compared to the intravenous administration of an identical dose of unbound ethinyl estradiol. Blood samples were obtained before oral and intravenous ethinyl estradiol doses and up to 48 hours after the intravenous dose. The mean ethinyl estradiol oral bioavailability, based on the area under the concentration-time curve, was 38 +/- 17%. This oral bioavailability is comparable to that found in a previous study using an ethinyl estradiol dose 20 times
