If you grew up in the '80s and can't understand why I get slightly teary-eyed just thinking about the kids I grew up with, you can stop reading right now and never look back. Or, you can keep reading and I'll ask you some questions and you can make your own mind up about whether my memories are justified. I've only brought up the Thundercats stuff because this game and the Thirty-three of the pneumococcal bacteraemia episodes, in a child, were secondary bacteraemia in response to an invasive GAS infection and 15 of these children had sepsis. Haemolytic Streptococci were isolated from four (16%) of the invasive GAS infections in children and four (13%) of the pneumococcal bacteraemia episodes in adults. S. pneumoniae was present in 23 of 24 P. aeruginosa bacteraemia episodes in children and in 10 of 27 in adults. In adults, two of the six (33%) N. meningitidis bacteraemia episodes were secondary bacteraemia in response to an invasive GAS infection. Haemolytic Streptococci were isolated from seven (88%) of the invasive GAS infections in children. The appearance of the pneumococcal antibiotic resistance surveillance report did not contribute to the timing of the revision of the National Antimicrobial Resistance Public Health Reference Service (NARPHRS) guidelines for the treatment of respiratory tract and intrathecal infections (2004). The results were reviewed with respect to a) changes in susceptibility to antimicrobials that were included in the 2002 guidelines and b) differences in treatment strategies for children and adults. Procedure The Guidelines Group convened to evaluate and review the resistance data published in 2002, to determine whether the 2002 guidelines could be revised to take into account emerging data, and to inform the National Drug Resistance Public Health Reference Service (NARPHRS) guidelines. Objectives To determine whether the 2002 guidelines can be revised to take into account

02: An earthquake measuring 4.4 on the Richter scale hits Cyprus in the last quarter of 2010.(File photo) Cyprus reported to have suffered its second earthquake within three years on Thursday, but it was as strong as a 6.6-magnitude quake that hit in the same area on 17 October 2008. There was no immediate information on any damage caused by the 4.4 magnitude quake. "The situation is calm," an official in Nicosia said, adding that officials were warning people to remain calm. "It's nothing to do with the quake; people are just scared at the moment because of the fear," a lawyer based in Limassol told Al Jazeera. "We have been learning of gradual aftershocks being felt in various parts of the country. We don't know whether the first quake had anything to do with the aftershocks," a government spokesman said. Cyprus was rocked by a 6.6-magnitude earthquake in October 2008. A total of 13 people lost their lives in that quake and nearly a quarter of its homes were destroyed, according to officials.Q: Django Reinhold's triple Inheritance class ParkingSpace(models.Model): user = models.ForeignKey(User) parking = models.ForeignKey(Parking)
