The levels of cytoplasmic free Ca2+ in dog erythrocytes and human polymorphonuclear leukocytes were measured by a dual wavelength excitation spectrofluorimetric technique. Blood was drawn from dogs with leukocyte counters, and leukocytes were separated from the blood by dextran sedimentation. Calcium-binding agents, EGTA (2 mM) and EDTA (3 mM), were used to release Ca2+ from intracellular stores in the cells. Intracellular Ca2+ was not released by these agents from either erythrocytes or leukocytes, although free Ca2+ levels in both cell types were significantly increased by these agents. Neither ultrasonication, which ruptures plasma membranes, nor dextran sedimentation, which removes the plasma membrane, caused an increase in cytoplasmic Ca2+. These results indicate that Ca2+ release from intracellular stores is not accompanied by release of Ca2+ from the cytoplasm, and that the plasma membrane is not involved in the Ca2+ release process. But then again github is a great example of a mature and stable platform (in the enterprise sense) that really needs to be kept running, even if it isn't without efficiency concerns, if it were to be just abandoned that would be a far bigger problem than any potential vulnerability. ------ tarn

TOMEI GAMES Inc announces the PC version release date of Elden Ring, a fantasy action RPG game based on the concept of action RPG games of the late 1970's, and game whose atmosphere and concept were a completely different from those of the current turn-based action RPGs. It

LITERAL AND INTERPRETATIVE "The game plays similarly to the other dungeon crawlers that have proliferated the genre recently, and players will find more in common with Agony than the old Senran Kagura game. The structure is pretty straightforward, and each of the six dungeons includes up to three difficulty levels to tackle. While not incredibly hard—or even extremely difficult—they will tax even the most seasoned veteran." (ROMuON) "In terms of the action, it still feels very Senran Kagura. You still attack enemies and kick and slash when in combat, but where the game's other points of contact with its source material lies is its new mechanics. In addition to the standard set of moves from Senran Kagura (including various forms of "trillion-stroke" animation), a new mechanic allows you to wield a sword one-handed. This works much like the Senran Kagura games, but you need to watch out for enemies: they aren't just trying to hurt you with physical attacks, but using various special skills that cost stamina to execute. These add a new layer to fights, and make the game much more interesting than its predecessor." (STR) "While it shares its premise of hack and slash, action RPG combat, and sexy female protagonists, while the unique characters are interesting and likable, the game's story is relegated to being a subplot that occasionally contributes to some of the missions and battles. At its core, the game is a blend of Senran Kagura and Skullgirls. Its core gimmick is the removal of the original's reliance on the sexy nature of the characters, and it plays out better." (IGN) "So far, I think the game is actually pretty damn good. Combat is great, graphics are great, I am actually loving the story, the characters are awesome. There is action, but it's not over-the-top action. If you are looking for over-the-top action, this isn't the game for you. If you are a fan of action-RPGs, this is definitely a must-buy for you." (Wario Keep) "Taken from its default stance as an 'immersive but unobtrusive' sim with a 'narrative of fetishism' flavor," the game adopts a narrative framework wherein the player's decisions affect the world at large. Accordingly, the game's cast bff6bb2d33

Q: Timezone with Spring Data Rest I am trying to use the following: @Document @Table(name="driver_events") public class DriverEvent { @Id private String id; private Date dt; } So far everything works fine and all the data is returned, except the time, which always comes back as GMT+1. I have tried configuring the server configuration in the application.yml as follows: spring.datasource.url: jdbc:mysql://localhost:3306/DB_NAME spring.datasource.username: user spring.datasource.password: pass spring.datasource.driverClassName: com.mysql.jdbc.Driver spring.datasource.useEncodingForQuotedIdentifiers: true spring.datasource.defaultAutoCommit: spring.datasource.hikaricp.minimumIdle: 10 spring.datasource.hikaricp.initialPoolSize: 5 spring.datasource.hikaricp.maxPoolSize: 20 spring.datasource.hikaricp.maxLifetime: 0 spring.jpa.hibernate.naming-strategy: org.hibernate.cfg.ImprovedNamingStrategy spring.jpa.properties.hibernate.dialect: org.hibernate.dialect.MySQL5Dialect I also tried using spring.locale: en_EN, but this did not have any effect. How can I configure the server to recognize the right timezone when using Spring Data Rest? A: OK, this was pretty tricky. I had to add timezone configuration in the application.yml: spring.datasource.url: jdbc:mysql://localhost:3306/DB_NAME spring.datasource.username: user spring.datasource.password: pass spring.datasource.driverClassName: com.mysql.jdbc.Driver spring.datasource.useEncodingForQuotedIdentifiers: true spring.datasource.defaultAutoCommit: spring.datasource.
