In FIFA 18, players could use "Precision Dribbling" to perform a move when they were in possession of the ball. They could run towards their marker, then perform a fake run or a fake spin, before delivering a pass to a teammate. FIFA 18 also introduced the "Augmented Dribbling System" (ADS). Augmented Dribbling System players could use their own and their team-mate's speed to deliver passes to teammates. ADS-powered players could fake run, spin or run past the marker, in a more realistic manner than in FIFA 17. Players could control their dribbling by rotating their left or right toe on the analog sticks. The toe movements would translate to sharper cuts and spins. FIFA 18 also introduced "AI Tackles" which could be used to control the match. The game would analyse whether the player tackled an opponent based on the team's defensive strategy. AI tackles are not available to all players. Player skills like dribbling and crossing would impact whether they use AI tackles or not. In FIFA 17, teams could purchase players and upgrade their players with character-specific attributes like speed, strength and more. Football Manager 2018 (Facebook page) has released a beta build of the match engine which includes attributes like acceleration, stamina, strength and more. The beta will be available to players who pre-register on the game's page. In FIFA 19, game modes featured players at the peak of fitness. The game would show each player a "Strength Score" which reflected their current fitness. FIFA 19 also introduced the "Fitness Transfer" which would transfer players' fitness from one player to another. In the later years, games like FIFA 11 introduced a web of fluid change, both in terms of the improvements made to the game, and in terms of the players themselves. However, for the first time in a FIFA game, the game offers more than one mode of gameplay—this release will focus on the accessible, friendly Mode of Play, as well as the core values and game design principles developed since the original release of FIFA Soccer, on the PC. Prior to this release, the FIFA World Tour series had focused on the Championship modes, where the online match had plenty of strategy and trade offs between different styles of play. But this release of FIFA 20 will make an attempt to introduce a lighter, more

FIFA is the official videogame of the worldwide governing body of world football, Fédération Internationale de Football Association (FIFA), which includes the sport's main continental confederations. FIFA is published in over 120 countries and is the best selling sports videogame of all time, with over one billion units sold. Why do you use the word Powered by? The logo and the tagline "Powered by Football" were created to ensure that EA SPORTS, the premier videogame developer and publisher of FIFA, is firmly embedded into and responsible for the game. The tagline was inspired by the use of the term "Powered by" by the magazine Sports Illustrated. This tagline, which is almost a mantra for FIFA, was designed in 2007 to help everyone understand that they are playing a version of FIFA that has been built on the values and instincts of EA Sports. For more information on the tagline: What's new? Features Reign in the New Era of Commentary: With rich, in-depth play-by-play and color commentary from over 100 voice actors, this is the most expansive, detailed, and accurate commentary in the history of the series. New Commentary Stars: Joining the on-field talent are some of the best commentators in the business, including award-winning play-by-play legend John Madden, the voices of the NFL, Bob Papa, and Randy Moss, and a host of other top-name ex-NFL, NBA, MLB, and NHL players, including NFL Hall of Famers Jerry Rice and Bobby Beathard. Compete in New FIFA Football Stadiums: Play all-new football pitches, including: The Emirates Arena, located at the heart of the bustling business district of London; the Allianz Arena in Munich, Germany; La Bombonera stadium in Buenos Aires, Argentina; and new venues in San Francisco and Atlanta. Stadiums are all designed to meet the unique needs of the host country while also providing detailed and authentic player animations. Maximise New Connectivity: Ultimate Team Rivals and Draft Champions are connected to the online marketplace and won't be restricted to a small group of qualifying friends. While this sounds like a good thing, it also means that the game will become more about what you do now, rather than waiting to try to find a player and give him points
