Slavic folklore is filled with enigmatic creatures, magical flying islands and powerful deities. Explore and fight in the world of Slavic folklore - meet the 13 deities and mythical creatures! Fight against evil and help those who are in danger! Features: Over 30 locations to explore! 40 puzzles to solve 2 different endings Collect special cards! Game Download A: Description of the game: It seems an RTS (real-time strategy) or a RPG (role-playing game) of the kind Action-RPG or of the kind of Battle of AGE type games. It depends if it is an expansion of an original game of the kind SNES, like Super Mario RPG 2, a standalone sequel of an existing franchise, or something more original, due to the description of a botanist, the myth of a lost land called Slavland and much more. If it's more an RPG it's not a very specific one, but to some of the boss looks more like the classic Zelda series. But, despite the fact it's not exactly a RPG, the manner in which the game is played is indeed very similar to the typical RPG, with an emphasis on puzzles and dungeon-like locations. The description also seem to be a quick pitch to a sequel of a already popular game, in which case it might be a crossover based on one of the Nintendo franchises. For the moment, while the game is not yet released, two elements are very clear: the world map is not too much simplified and plays more like a Zelda-series world map, with dungeons and dragons, and in this case a boss from a classic Nintendo franchise is the boss to defeat (Fator). Two additional hints point to the fact that it's not an expansion of an existing game: the use of botanist as the main class and the lack of a traditional tutorial. It's very difficult to speculate more about the game, except for the first line of the description, because the rest is not very precise. The nature of the game could be summarized in the following way: Botanist game, possibly a Zelda-like RPG, with a couple of dungeons instead of overworld. Could be a new game, or a sequel of an existing game. If a sequel, it would be more like a TV show than a movie. Could be a crossover of Nintendo games, or just a coincidence. This question is still open

The folks who do are the ones who should have permission to use any content from Dead & Company, especially since they changed the name from Dead Company to Dead & Company. This game is so amped up on the constant reinvention of its successor, Black Ops, that it's not even worth mentioning it's existence. Monday, February 20, 2007 (GameStop.com) -- This AD takes advantage of the fact that Nuke was one of the first games that produced multiple endings. In the movie, Will Smith uses his nerd mode, deletes all of his movie knowledge, and ultimately creates two more endings than he will ever realize during the pre-rendered battle with the alien. For the sake of avoiding spoilers, I won't mention the alternative endings -- let's just say they're even funnier than this one. Thanks to TekFanta for uploading this clip. What's new:

(5.13c) I was re-reading the routes on Legacy of Legends. I knew the moves but I felt like I had to work on them. I decided to attempt Endorungain (5.13c). The warm-up included lots of crunches and good stretches. I had an aero dodges practice in my Warm-ups. The stance is somewhat unusual but surprisingly worth trying. Once I got my feet in the stance my legs started carrying me to the hit. I had a stretchy falls to work on as well. I've never gotten an aero fall on my friends so I was nervous but I executed this one clean and it landed. I was just like "Goooooo!!!" I then tried to ramp it up to a 5.13 but that wasn't possible today. This is more of a warmup than a sweaty session. posture back to normal. This week my ride buddy came to rescue me on a late night. I'm thankful that he is a gentleman. He got me started up on the Echo Coil Freeride Factory X-course. At the beginning of the season he rode the Gun Jim Flat Button as there was a 2 way split going down to the corner's. He said the X-course is a transition route from that. This is an intro to the X-course. It's steep and everything. I completed the course Saturday and Sunday. I went sub -9 for the first time ever. I was totally shocked that it could go that quick. I'm still using the Gun Jim Flat Button for my stomp style. The control I got from the Gun Jim Flat Button helps me make smaller foot movements when I pin it. All of the hard lines on the Gun Jim Flat Button do nothing for my drop style, but I'm working on my repositioning and rip time. I rode it two times, this is the third time. The first time I pulled out on a weird edge and did a hard snap over. Of
