Three home-grown toilers joined forces on. the day but they asked if I would like to read them out over the microphone. I think it would have been a bit awkward sitting at my desk with the microphone hanging over my head. Our Vicar had an ace up his sleeve. Suddenly I was expected to introduce myself as a minister of the church, the 'Prebendary', in front of 300 people. I don't think I've ever been made to do it so many times! What would the parish be like now?I would have to say it's really different, there's no way I'd be able to work here. I remember there being a huge need for a new parish hall, so I think I'd be asking myself what I could do to help, instead of what I'd like to do. However, I'm not shy about going into churches, so if I were in the same place, I'd be up for talking to the people - I'd want to know what they felt about church and what they'd like to see. I wouldn't change the Sunday morning schedule, which is the most important part of a parish minister's role. Have the roles changed since the ordination of women priests?I've seen a slight change, and that's because women have been allowed to be deaconesses. We don't need a deacon because women don't need to be ordained to take part in worship - the Church doesn't tell women to stand in a procession and hold a cross. However, the role of deaconess in the parish has changed. Nowadays 6d1f23a050
