learning book on hand has in your home! www.debupub. comThe Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) is considering a law that will allow the government to acquire the land of every Catholic family in India without their prior consent, reports The Times of India. With the government determining the country is overpopulated, the new law will allow the government to acquire all the land of Catholic families as part of the secularization drive in the country. The move, which will be in the form of an ordinance, will follow the recommendations of the Expert Committee on Population and Land Utilization (ECPLU) headed by the Urban Development Ministry. The ECPLU recommends that "landless households should be relocated on government land" and that "landowners who wish to retain the land [be] compelled to rehabilitate the landless families." The Committee, which has been meeting for last nine years, made the recommendations in 2001, but the MHA had never acted upon
