The two countries were formally enemies from 1950 to 1953. After the Iranian Revolution of 1979 and the annexation of the Iranian province of Khuzestan by the Iraqi army in 1981, relations worsened. However, under U.S. president Ronald Reagan, relations with Iran were restored. Relations were further improved during the presidency of George H. W. Bush, who lifted US economic sanctions on Iran in 1988. When Jimmy Carter was president, the U.S. cut off diplomatic relations and there were 753 U.S. diplomats in Iran. However, this was reversed under Ronald Reagan, who refused to condemn Ayatollah Khomeini's seizing of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Today, relations between the United States and Iran are generally good. However, since 1979, the relationship has been marred by Iranian support for the rebellion in Lebanon in the early 1980s and the Iran-Contra affair. The United States and Iran signed a Strategic Partnership Agreement in April 2016, and the Iran nuclear deal on July 14, 2015 c6a93da74d
